

El Paso Museum of Art presents Rachel Rose: Lake Valley

EL PASO, Texas – The El Paso Museum of Art (EPMA) invites the public to view its new exhibition, Rachel Rose: Lake Valley that opens Friday, January 24 at the museum.

The exhibition features a ten-minute video and sound installation that follows a day in the life of a young girl and her pet. Taking elements from children’s literature, Rose joins dreamy imagery with an ethereal soundtrack to create a story without words. Audiences will reflect on themes of childhood and loneliness as well as growth and adulthood.

In addition to the exhibition, a family-friendly collaborative space will allow visitors to create their own stories inspired by Rose. The interactive activities will engage audiences of all ages through creative storytelling. Visitors will be able to use a felt wall to collage images and use a magnet board to describe their narrative. Visitors can also enjoy a writing station and reading nook within the collaborative space.

“Rachel Rose is one of the best-known artists working with moving images in America today,” said El Paso Museum of Art Senior Curator Dr. Kate Green. “Visitors of all ages are going to enjoy Lake Valley, an exploration of a day in the life of a young person. Presented in an installation designed by the artist, the video uses animated images and sounds to evoke what it feels like to be young and newly independent.”

The exhibition is free and will run through August. For more information on the exhibit or to learn more about the El Paso Museum of Art, www.epma.art.

Generous support for this project provided by Art Bridges. Additional support provided by the El Paso Museum of Art Foundation and El Paso Museums and Cultural Affairs Department.
